Remarkable Updates!
JONI LAMB

I want to say a BIG THANK YOU from the bottom of my heart! Today I received an unexpected delivery of Through the Storm. How timely and a testament to God's perfect timing to receive it today, my heart leapt with joy and tears fell down my face. Daystar and Joni have been a light in the darkest of times for me and such a trusted companion on my walk with God.

UNLOCKING YOUR TRUE POTENTIAL

with Joyce Meyer

What made this the right time to share about the power of an unselfish life?

JM: I think this may be one of the most important books I have ever written, and it's a message that I have taught in various ways over the years. I think today, more than ever, our society is extremely me-focused. We're all looking for joy and fulfillment, but we won't find it as long as we are constantly focused on ourselves.

The world often teaches people that the best way to have a great life is to "look out for #1" and always put themselves first. But that's not what God says in His Word.

God instructs us to love one another (John 13:34). Loving others makes them happy, and it makes us happy, too. In fact, God promises that when we delight ourselves in Him and focus on being good to other people, He will take care of our needs and give us the desires of our heart (Psalm 37:4; Matthew 6:33).

For the first 30 years of my Christian life, I was still extremely selfish and self-centered. I spent most of my time thinking about what I wanted, what I thought, and how I felt. In addition, I was filled with self-pity. Every morning, I woke up thinking about myself, and kept thinking about myself all day until I fell asleep at night.

It was hard for me to admit that I was selfish, and I think it's hard for all of us. But facing our self-centeredness and letting God deal with it was life-changing for me, and I believe it will be for others, too. Learning to live an unselfish life may seem to be an unlikely path to happiness and blessing, but I promise you: It is.

We were never created to constantly focus inward. In fact, the quickest way to become miserable is to think about yourself all of the time. However, when you choose to focus on others and how you can be a blessing to them, it will release tremendous joy in your life.

Do you think it's common for believers to struggle balancing personal needs with a life of service to others?

JM: I believe we can get out of balance in two different ways. We can live selfishly and not focus on others enough. Or, we can also go to the other extreme and get to a point where we ignore our own needs.

Living an unselfish life doesn't mean we should never think about ourselves or do things we like to do. Taking care of ourselves is important. If we're not healthy—emotionally, mentally, spiritually—then we have nothing to give to others. I often say that one of the greatest gifts you can give to your family and friends is a healthy you.

I spend quite a bit of time ministering to others and I choose to find as many ways as I can to be good to people. But I also need time for myself to rest, recharge, and even just have fun. If we don't have that balance, that's when we get in trouble and feel burned out.

First Peter 5:8 says, Be well balanced...for that enemy of yours, the devil, roams around like a lion roaring [in fierce hunger], seeking someone to seize and devour (AMPC). When we get out of balance, we open the door for the enemy.

What biblical principles or teachings do you emphasize in your book to help readers find fulfillment and purpose in their lives?

JM: For starters, I believe all of us simply want to be happy. We're looking for joy and fulfillment, but sometimes we search for it in the wrong places. That's why selfishness can be so sneaky. When we are selfish, we may think we are getting what we want, however, it steals our joy and leaves us feeling empty.

Matthew 10:39 is a key scripture in my book. Jesus says, Whoever finds his [lower] life will lose it [the higher life], and whoever loses his [lower] life on My account will find it [the higher life] (AMP).

Jesus came that we might have and enjoy our lives abundantly (John 10:10).

If we are willing to be unselfish and give to others, we will have an abundance of joy. It's about living to give instead of living to get. As we do, God will take care of us and give us much more than we could ever manage to get for ourselves (Luke 6:38).

Selfishness can also show up in our lives in a lot of ways that we don't realize. For instance, it can prevent us from trusting God and letting Him take care of us. Proverbs 3:5-7 says, Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths. Be not wise in your own eyes...(ESV).

God is smarter than we are, and He always knows what is best for us. He knows what will work in our lives and what will make us happy.

Because of the abuse I suffered as a young girl, I developed an attitude that said, No one will ever control me again. I don't need anyone else—I can take care of myself. It was difficult for me to fully trust myself with God. However, as I experienced His repeated faithfulness, that trust grew. It's okay—and even necessary—to have a plan. But life gets good when we can relax in God's love and trust Him to direct our steps all along the way.

These are a couple of the many principles I share in What About Me? And if I can tease just one more, it's that God is the source of all change, and we can't do any of these things without Him (John 15:5).

My life is a perfect example. The Lord took someone who was very selfish and self-centered, and little by little, He transformed me into who I am today. I certainly have a long way to go, and I still battle with selfishness. But I can say that living to love others is the greatest joy of my life.

Wherever you are in your journey with God, I want to encourage you that change is possible! God's Word has the ability to transform your heart and help you enjoy everything He has planned for your future.

God is smarter than we are, and He always knows what is best for us.

Hello, Family!

Have you noticed that the reality of life today includes more uncertainty than ever before? In the midst of the confusion and chaos, I want to offer you a message of hope and strength! Life often presents us with trials and moments of challenge that can feel overwhelming. Yet, in these very moments, we have a divine source of strength and peace. Psalm 46:1 reassures us, "God is our refuge and strength, an ever-present help in trouble." No matter what challenges you may be facing, remember that God is with you, ready to provide the strength you need to persevere and the peace that surpasses all understanding (Philippians 4:7).

As we navigate these times of uncertainty, let's draw close to God, who remains unshaken by the events of our world. Seek His presence, lean on His promises, and trust that He will carry us through. It is in these challenging seasons that we often experience His grace most profoundly, discovering new depths of faith and resilience.

This month we celebrate the 5th birthday of my wonderful grandson, Asher Samuel Weiss – also known as Asher Dasher! Asher's joy and boundless energy are truly contagious, sharing smiles and laughter to everyone around him. Happy birthday, Asher!

In network news, we are excited to share some remarkable updates. Daystar Television Network has expanded its reach to 6.5 million homes across Zambia, with coverage extending into Botswana and Angola on "Simba TV!" It's incredible to see how God is using this platform to touch lives across such a vast region, all available Free to Air on Channel 5.

Additionally, Daystar Español continues to grow its impact with a recent launch on "Star TV" in Mexico, reaching 500,000 homes! This expansion allows us to share the love of Jesus with even more of our Spanish-speaking brothers and sisters.

As we move through this month, may you find strength and comfort in the presence of our faithful God. He is our rock and our refuge, and His promises are a light in the midst of darkness. Thank you for being a part of this journey with us, and for your unwavering support and prayers.

With love and gratitude,
